It's Hot and Crowded In Convention City

CHICAGO (AP)—It's that kind of time at the Democratic National Convention: anything and everything goes.

It's hot. It's crowded. It's exasperating. It's corny.

And it's fun. Fun?

Long lines wait to register at the headquarter hotels that frequently find they don't have the rooms they've promised to reserve.

Long lines wait at some of the more popular restaurants. Long lines of protesters form near the bigger hotels, hoping they'll get delegates watching—and, maybe, listening.

And more police than usual, wearing hard blue riot helmets, stand alert to ensure the demonstrators stay in their long lines.

Sidewalk blocking is taboo. But inside some hotel lobbies you have to push and shove, like you're part of a circus crowd.

Pretty girls, chic in signature dresses of their candidates, roam the lobbies and the sidewalks with balloons and friendly conversation—trying to get in some last plugs before the convention's official Monday start.

Bearded men, some barefoot, hand out leaflets advertising big marches to protest the Vietnam war.

"We will not be denied our right to dissent," says the handbill. But Chicago police have them exactly where they can't go. And that's nowhere near the convention site.

Mayor Richard Daley says he won't allow out-of-town yuppies

Remaining Fugitives Arrested

SUNBURY, Pa. (AP)—Three men reported to be the last remaining fugitives of a group that escaped Sunday morning from Northumberland County Jail have been arrested in Binghamton, N.Y., by New York State Police.

The arrest was reported Sunday evening by State Police in Shamokin, Pa.

The men were identified as Robert Pfeife, 39, of Ithaca, N.Y., Wallace Mitchell, 27, and William Ziefel, 27, both of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The three were among a group of eight who overpowered two guards at the jail on their way to freedom, police said.

Five others were taken into custody in two separate arrests earlier in the day.

Police were put on the trail of Pfeife, Mitchell, and Ziefel, by Robert Martz, 25, the Sunbury man whom the men were said to have abducted and left tied to a tree near Forksville, Sullivan County. Martz worked his way free and alerted Pennsylvania State Police.

Arrested earlier Sunday in a cornfield just north of here were Peter J. Ryan, 21, of Ontario, Canada, Joseph P. Sullivan, 29, Auburndale, Mass., Robert Lee Carr, 22, and Arthur Padman, 20, both of Sunbury.

Police had apprehended a fifth escapee, Rene Greenwood, 17, of Los Angeles, Calif., earlier in the day.

VITAMINS AND GRAY HAIR

Q. Is there a vitamin which prevents gray hair?

A. No. Several years ago it was found that one of the B vitamins would prevent gray hair in certain laboratory animals on deficient diets. This raised great hope that it would work similarly in humans. Unfortunately, it did not.

TEETHING LOTIONS

Q. Of what value are teething lotions or powders in helping babies cut teeth?

A. There is little or no evidence that applications of lotions, powders, etc. to the gums of teething infants is beneficial. Most authorities contend that the majority of children have little or no difficulty during "teething," a contention with which most mothers disagree. "Teething rings" are sometimes recommended and may be of some help. When the gums are not oversensitive, mild massage may afford relief. This can be done two or three times a day by the mother.
